

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The contents distribution station includes channel allocation unit which judges whether the number of contents reception stations receiving a certain contents is large or small. When the number is large, a broadcast channel
5 is allocated to a reception station newly making a request for distribution of contents. When the number is small, an occupied channel is allocated to the reception station newly making a request for distribution of contents.